

GIBRALTAR ATTRACTING ATTENTION FINANCIERS

GREAT MINERAL FIND IS MADE NEW GIBRALTAR

Property Termed by Engineer as Silver Mine That is Turned Upside Down

ORE SHOWING REMARKABLE

Number of Important Deals Are Pending in Various Parts of Rich District

A silver mine upside down; a freak of nature, but nevertheless true. This was the expression made by a prominent mining engineer concerning the property of the New Gibraltar Mining company, whose shafts are located 61 miles north of Tonopah.

Many men who have examined this property agree that it possesses wonderful possibilities as a coming producer of silver, gold and lead, and the little excitement has been caused as a result of the ore showings that are now in evidence. Important discoveries have been made of late throughout that highly mineralized section while one deal of note that passing interest was concentrated last week which involved the transfer of $20,000 in cash and 100,000 shares in a company that is to be formed.

It is freely predicted by those who have been over the workings of the New Gibraltar Mining company that Gibraltar is destined to become the home of some of the greatest producers of southern Nevada. The district is properly to New York, central section of the state that is always furnishing surprises in a mining way, and it would seem that in this particular instance that Harry C. Stimler, the well known investment broker and pioneer prospector of southern Nevada, had at once found a mining property that would stand the acid test and prove a dominant factor in swelling the output of the precious metals in the years to come.

Imagine if you can a solid body of ore having a width of nearly 100 feet, with average values of $31 a ton in silver and gold, the white metal predominating to a very marked degree, and with values running as high as $150 a ton, and you have before your eyes the Gibraltar mine. This ore is showing on surface and the massive boulders and outcroppings carry these values wherever they can pick a specimen. That is the reason that the Gibraltar has been termed a "silver mine upside down." When development was first started on this property over two years ago a tunnel was driven about forty feet to crosscut the vein. A turn was then made to the west with the result that the andesite formation was passed and the vein missed.

Work was then suspended for some season, and development was not started again until about three months ago. A new company was formed to take over the property of the Gibraltar Silver Mines company. Since that time what is known as tunnel No. 2 has been driven on the vein, a monstrous body of ore having been exposed that is even of a better grade than that showing in the upper tunnel. The vein has been crosscut for about 50 feet, yet no wall has been encountered, and some engineers predict that it will be found to have a width of from 150 to 200 feet. In the bottom of the crosscut high grade ore is showing, being indicative that the ore shoot will be found to be persistent to great depth, and continually growing richer.

Recently H. C. Wilmut, one of the best known mining engineers in the United States, was recommended to New York investment brokers, represented by W. M. Waddell, by Murray Guggenheim, as the proper person to make a report upon the property. Mr. Wilmut spent several days at the seat of development, and in his preliminary report a favorable response was made. He recommended, however, that a crosscut tunnel be started farther down the hill that the vein might be intersected at an increased depth of 125 feet. Work on this undertaking was launched on October 14, the objective, according to surveys, lying about 200 feet ahead of the portal. Since then the bore has been advanced 60 feet, and in view of the fact that work is being rushed along with two shifts of miners, progress is resulting at the rate of from 10 to 11 feet each day. It is hoped to penetrate the vein within from 15 to 20 days at the longest, and all interested in Gibraltar are watching operations with more than passing interest.

When the Gibraltar vein has been reached, a winze will be sunk from the tunnel level with a view of determining the persistence of the ore shoots, and in the event they are found intact, then another tunnel will be started farther down, or nearer the base of the mountain, with a view of securing greater depth, and at the same time providing a means of egress for the ores that will ultimately be mined, thus reducing operating expenses to a minimum.

There are thousands upon thousands of tons of ore exposed in the two upper workings of this property that could be profitably handled with milling facilities. Although the country is unusually rugged along the mountain side, all of this ore could be profitably handled with milling facilities available. Through an aerial tramway this ore could be transported economically, but it is hoped to eliminate such a procedure through proving the persistence of the ore veins by deep tunnel driving, thus permitting of the running of the ore by means of chutes direct into the bins of the mill that will eventually be constructed.

The New Gibraltar Mining company has one of the best equipped properties to be found in any outside district in Nye county. Three large buildings, one used for a bunk house, another for a storage house and bunk rooms, and the third as a boarding house, grace the surroundings. In addition there is a residence for the manager and one for the superintendent. A telephone line has been constructed from the mine to connect with the line at Round Mountain of the Nevada Telephone Telegraph company, while blacksmith shops at both upper tunnels have been provided. A compressor building in which is installed the Chicago pneumatic three-drill compressor. An air line capable of carrying air for 3000 feet has been provided, and machine drills are pounding away in the advance of tunnel No. 3, which is destined to intersect the Gibraltar vein within a comparatively short time.

One of the leading features in connection with the mining and milling operations at Gibraltar lay in the fact that there is a bountiful water supply, and water has been piped a short distance from the creek whence Round Mountain secures its domestic supply. There is plenty of water that can be made available for both mining and milling purposes, which is an item of the greatest importance in the economical development of properties and in the reduction of the ores that are mined.

The formation of the Gibraltar district is andesite, rhyolite and lime shale, greatly resembling that of the Tonopah district.

With the announcement made Saturday that Nick Abelman, Jack Jordan and H. C. Stimler had sold the North Extension Gibraltar to Walter Geddes, representing New York capitalists, for a consideration of $200,000 cash and 100,000 shares in a company that is to be organized immediately, considerable excitement manifested itself. The first payment has been deposited with the Guaranty Trust company of New York and the final payment will be made shortly. Mr. Geddes was formerly superintendent of the Goldfield Consolidated Mines company, and during his regime the mine surrendered millions of dollars.

A visit to the property of the New Gibraltar Mining company made Sunday by a representative of the Bonanza, elicited the fact that there is a great deal of activity in that district. In addition to the New Gibraltar Mining company employing a force of twelve men, the hills are alive with prospectors and the ground has been located in all directions

SENATOR ODDIE SPEAKS HERE NEXT MONDAY

Last Rally of Campaign Will Be Held at Liberty Theatre; W. J. Kearney Coming

Contrary to the report in the moonshine sheet that the republicans closed their campaign last night with the monster rally held at the Butler theatre, the story is in keeping with others that appear from day to day in the discredited publication. On the other hand the republicans are planning for a rally even bigger and better than the one held last night, and the people will be advised concerning the great issues of the day by none other than our own Tasker L. Oddie, United States senator, who did so much in the interests of Nevada during the last session of congress. Congressman Campbell of Kansas, and W. J. Kearney, former state engineer, who has been expounding bombs in the opposition camp that have enlightened the people of this state concerning the extravagance of J. G. Scruggs, will be the featured speakers.

The big rally will be held at the Liberty theatre, and will consist of a meeting made to make the evening meeting one that will long be remembered in political circles of Nevada.

Mr. Kearney will arrive in Tonopah tomorrow morning and accompany the local republican candidates to Beatty where a rally will be held in the evening and he will inform the voters of that locality concerning the recklessness of the various state officials, and especially so concerning the conduct of the state engineer's office during the administration of J. G. Scruggs, who now aspires to be governor that he may appoint Emmett D. Boyle to the position he recently vacated.

EVACUATION OF JAPANESE MAY CALL FOR WAR

Is Signal for New Conflict in That Territory With Gen. Dietrichs as Leader

TOKIO, Oct. 27.—The Japanese evacuation of Vladivostok, consummated yesterday, promises to be the signal for a new war in that territory with General Dietrichs, the "die hard" leader of the White guards, aligned with Chang Tso-Lin, "uncrowned king" of Manchuria, according to latest advices received here. General Dietrichs, who kept the royalist flag of Russia flying in Vladivostok until five days before the arrival of the Red forces, is reported to have gone to Chang's capital, Mukden, to discuss an alliance between the two and plans to attack the Reds' line communications. Meanwhile American and other marines are guarding the foreign consulates at Vladivostok.

DEMOCRATIC NOMINEES FOR OFFICES VISIT TONOPAH

Tonopah is being visited today by a party of democratic office seekers in the persons of Key Pittman, who is seeking re-election as United States senator, M. A. Diskin, nominee for attorney general; George A. Cole, nominee for state controller; Ed Malley, nominee for state treasurer; Joe Farnsworth, nominee for state printer; and Chas. Deady, nominee for surveyor general. The visitors will address a meeting to be held at the Butler theatre.

Within a radius of three miles, Jack Lacy, who holds property adjoining the North Extension Gibraltar, brought in a number of samples of silver bromide that will unquestionably carry high values in silver. It looks like the district was destined to enjoy a real mining boom, and the outcome of the next few weeks will be watched with great interest.

G. O. P. RALLY GREAT SUCCESS; WELL ATTENDED

Chas. S. Chandler and A. Grant Miller Pound Home Telling Truths on Democrats

A large and intensely interested audience greeted the Chas. S. Chandler party at the Butler theatre last night to hear the issues of the campaign discussed in a clear and concise manner. The addresses of Mr. Chandler and A. Grant Miller were confined largely to national issues, and no personalities were indulged in whatever. Facts and figures were set forth that are indisputable, and which are generally well known.

The first speaker of the evening was E. H. Hunting, candidate for state treasurer, who made a favorable impression with his audience. He was followed by George B. Russell, nominee for surveyor general, and then George F. Smith, nominee for state printer, both of whom made a few brief remarks.

Mr. Chandler was the next speaker introduced, and he proceeded to explain the passage of what is known as the Pittman silver act which was enacted in April, 1918. He explained how a coalition of western mining men were called to Washington to confer with the treasury department concerning the passage of a war-time measure that would mean dollar silver, which was brought about through the crying need of Great Britain for a supply of the white metal in order to avoid a revolution in that country. President Wilson urged its immediate passage that the allies might be safeguarded in the great world conflict. In a letter to Carter Glass, then secretary of the treasury from President Wilson, the former told the senators and congressmen that he could not explain the necessity for the enactment of the dollar silver bill, but that it was essential as a war time measure. Senator Pittman injected himself into the good graces of the western committee of mining men and was permitted to introduce the bill, with the result that both republicans and democrats voted for the measure. "Patriotism passed the bill," remarked Mr. Chandler, "and it would have been passed just the same whether Senator Pittman had been in the senate or not."

Mr. Chandler dwelt at some length upon what is known as the Pittman reclamation act which provides for entry upon 2500 acres of desert land, with the proviso that water be put upon 20 acres of land, whereupon a patent will issue upon the entire 2500 acres. "This law is valuable to the man of wealth," continued Mr. Chandler, "what we need is a reclamation act that will provide a fund for the United States to experiment and discover water sufficient for the reclaiming of the desert land. After the water supply has been developed the law should provide for entry upon land, giving the man who levels the land and brings it under cultivation a long term of years in which to pay for the water that he secures."

Mr. Chandler next touched upon the power question and said that problem would eventually be solved through the Boulder canyon project. The long and short haul discrimination was dwelt upon. He said Pittman charged the republicans had done nothing to remedy conditions, although for eight years he had been in control. Pittman's activities in fighting the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill were explained and the audience informed how the senator orator had thrown monkey wrenches in the cogs while that measure was pending.

A. Grant Miller, whom almost everybody knows, and who is recognized as the silver-tongued orator of the west, entertained his audience and held them spellbound throughout his address. He appealed to the voter to send Mr. Chandler to Washington that the republican administration might have the support of Nevada in working out the salvation of the people of this country. He told of the great accomplishments of the last eighteen months, recited of the saving of one billion dollars a year in the operation of government; of the relief that had been furnished the disabled soldiers and of the efforts that are being made to provide a bonus. "If I had my way," said Mr. Miller, "I would force the payment of the ten billions of dollars that are owing this country by the allies and distribute that money among the boys who fought for us during the late war."

Mr. Miller closed his address by directing two questions to Senator Pittman relative to the manner in which four billion dollars can be secured for the payment of the proposed soldier bonus, as follows: "First—Would you vote for a general sales tax?" "Second—Would you favor a four billion bond issue to meet the emergency?"

Senator Pittman will have an opportunity to answer these two questions at the democratic rally tonight. They have been asked before, but so far as known there has been no response. Let's see if he will evade the subject tonight.
